- 1 John does experiments to find out the effects of the waste products on rats and writes a report.
- Wilson says he doesn't want to build new machines to clean up the waste products.
- John gets very nervous and drinks water.

The story so far

John Duncan starts working in a factory. A few months later, he writes a report for his boss, David Wilson. Wilson calls John into his office to talk to him.

The report

'I've read your report,' Wilson began. Then he stopped. 'Not very good, is it?'

'What?' John stared at him in surprise.

Wilson smiled. 'No, no, don't worry – I don't mean the report is bad, of course not. You've worked very hard, and done your job well. What I mean is, I don't like the ideas at the end of the report.'

'What's wrong with them?'

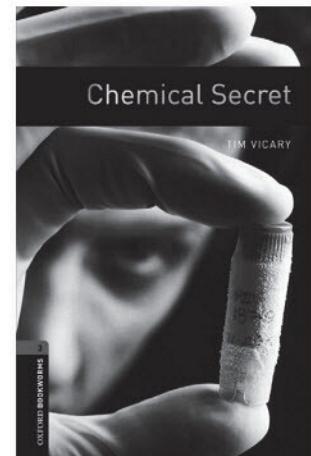

'They're too expensive.' The two men stared at each other for a moment, and John felt cold and sick in his stomach. Wilson smiled, but it wasn't the kind of smile that John liked.

'Look, John,' he said. 'Your report says that we should build some new machines to clean up the waste products before they go into the river, right? And those machines will cost two million pounds! Where do you think we can find all that? Money doesn't grow on trees, you know!'

'No, of course not.' John's mouth was dry. He took a drink of water, and felt his hand shaking. 'But we're selling a lot of new paint. We're making millions of pounds every month from that, aren't we?'

'We're doing very well, yes,' said Wilson. 'But if we spend two million pounds to build these new machines, the paint will have to cost more, and we won't sell so much.'

'But – we've got to do it,' said John. 'These waste products are much more dangerous than I'd thought. Didn't you read that in my report? When I put the chemicals in rats' drinking water, some of the baby rats were born without eyes and ears. One didn't have any legs, and one had six.' He shivered. 'And some were born without legs when they drank only two parts per million. We can't put those chemicals in the river.'

- 3 Complete the article with eight of the verbs in exercises 1 and 2a.

The changing face of social media

If you 1 use social media, you'll know that Facebook and Twitter are two of the most popular sites. Users 2 log on online several times a day to 3 check to their account and check what's new. You can 4 post photos and 5 upload videos on both sites but, in fact, they are quite different. Most people use Twitter to 6 share the news or follow celebrities who 7 post messages about what they're doing. Of course, it's easier to 8 comment online on Facebook, because you can write as many words as you like. These sites are popular now, but the internet is always changing, so perhaps in the future we will use different ones.

Family facts around the world

Did you know ...?

- Children have a mother and a father who are their parents. However, more children live with a single parent in the Americas, Europe, Oceania and Africa than in the rest of the world. In these families, it is the oldest relatives, such as grandmothers and uncles, who help to look after the younger children.
- Children usually live with their parents and their brothers and sisters. Sharing a house with other relatives is more common in Asia, the Middle East, South America and Africa. People in these areas often live with grandparents and great-grandparents, but some live with aunts and uncles, too.
- The main reason for finding a partner is usually to form a new family together. Couples are more likely to be married in Africa, Asia and the Middle East. In the Americas, Europe and Oceania more people are single than in other places.
- Families in some countries have more children than families in others. It is unusual for African families to have an only child. In Nigeria, women usually have five or six sons and daughters.

There were problems in the South because the local population wanted the schools to be ¹*mixed / segregated*. Change started to come in the 1950s when the law changed ²*and black children wanted to go to Central High School / and white children wanted to go to another school*. On 2nd September Orval Faubus tried to ³*break the law / enforce the law*. Later in the same month ⁴*there were more protests outside Central High / everything calmed down*. The president ⁵*reacted to the situation / ignored the situation*. From then on the black children were protected ⁶*by soldiers / by police*.

- 4 Think about the racism in the story. Can you think of other countries in the world where racism has been an important issue? Do people worry about racism in your country? Why/Why not?

The story so far

Martin Luther King Junior (January 15th, 1929 – April 4th, 1968) was the leader of the African-American Civil Rights Movement. The incident in the extract took place just after he and his new wife moved back to the South of the United States.

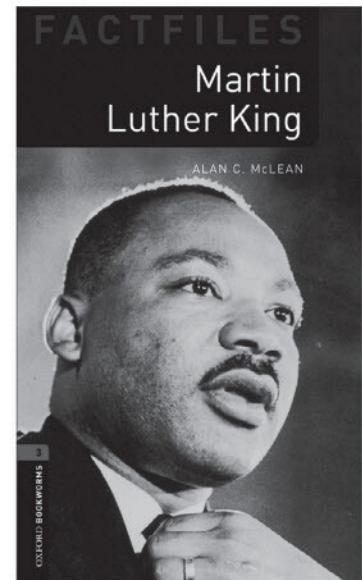

Big trouble in Little Rock

There were many other things in the South that needed to change. Schools were segregated: white children went to all-white schools, black children went to all-black schools. Although there were more black children than white children in the South, much more money was spent on white schools than on black schools.

But in 1954 the law was changed. Now it was against the law to have different schools for black children and white children. The new law said that all schools had to take both black children and white children.

Change came slowly to the South. Many white people hated the new law, and in many Southern states, they refused to obey it. Arkansas was one of these states. In the state capital, Little Rock, nine black students tried to enter the Central High School at the start of the 1957–58 school year. Little Rock soon became one of the most famous places in the story of the fight for civil rights.

On 2 September, the night before the start of the new school year, the leader of the Arkansas government, Orval Faubus, ordered the National Guard to stand outside Central High School. He told them to stop any black student from entering the school, because he was afraid of trouble from protesters. The school was closed. But a judge said that Faubus could not use the National Guard to do something that was against the law. On 23 September the Little Rock police took the nine black students into Central High. A crowd of more than a thousand white people tried to stop the black students from entering. The crowd rioted and attacked the police. The pictures of the riot were seen all over the world, and many Americans were shocked to see such ugly attacks in their own country. Next day, the President of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, ordered the army to Little Rock. A thousand soldiers entered Little Rock Central High School. Every morning the nine black children walked to the school, and every morning the soldiers protected them as they walked through crowds of angry whites.

Beautiful Krakow

If you're looking for ¹*anywhere / everywhere / somewhere* interesting to go for your next holiday, why not try Krakow in Poland? The city is more than 750 years old, and ²*anywhere / nowhere / somewhere* in Poland is more historical. The most famous attractions are the Wawel Castle and the beautiful Old Town, with its enormous market place. There isn't ³*anything / nothing / something* more relaxing than sitting in the square, enjoying a cup of coffee. Walking through the narrow streets of the city, you'll find ⁴*anything / everything / something* old, strange or amazing around every corner.

To see ⁵*anything / everything / nothing* in the city you need to spend at least a week there, but you should choose your time to visit carefully. ⁶*Anybody / Everybody / Somebody* goes to Krakow in the summer, so from June to September, you might not find ⁷*anywhere / everywhere / somewhere* to stay.

Body language around the world

When you are abroad, you must be careful how you express yourself with your body. If you make your hand into a 1 fist and begin to shake it at somebody, most people will understand that you're angry. But not all actions mean the same in every country.

In Asia, people are very careful not to 2 anybody with their foot. And, like many other countries, they never put their feet on chairs and tables where they are sitting.

In Fiji, people 3 hands for a very long time. Don't worry if this continues for all of your conversation – it's normal.

Greetings in some European countries are often quite physical. People kiss friends and family on the 4, and they often 5.

In countries like France, what you do at the dinner table is very important. Don't put your 6 on the table, and don't eat with your fingers. People will think you are rude if you do this.

Some countries have different ways of saying 'yes' and 'no'. In Greece and Bulgaria, people shake their head for yes and 7 for no. This can be confusing, so it's probably better to learn the words for yes and no.

However, there is one international expression that everybody understands. If you are having problems and you don't know what to say, the best thing to do is 8.

7 Complete the text with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

One of the best ways of learning a language is to spend some time in a country where people speak the language. If you ¹go (go) to Moscow, for example, you ²learn (learn) Russian a lot more quickly than if you stay at home going to classes twice a week. It is probably better to go on this trip alone. If you ³travel (travel) in a group, you ⁴spend (spend) all your time speaking your own language with your friends.

Another option is to try and find a job abroad. If you ⁵work (work) in a restaurant in Paris, for example, you ⁶have (have to) speak French to the customers all day. Another idea is to share a flat with some people from the country. If you ⁷find (find) a room in a shared flat in Berlin, for example, your German ⁸be (be) fantastic by the time you go home. You could also try living with a family and looking after their children while you're away. The only problem is that you ⁹feel (feel) lonely if you ¹⁰not go (not go out) much. You ¹¹not meet (not meet) anybody if you ¹²stay (stay) in your room all day, so it's important to find somebody to talk to. If you ¹³practise (practise) the language a lot, you ¹⁴feel (feel) much more confident. Spending time abroad is a great experience, and you might not want to come home at the end of it!

Seven-a-day

Many world governments today have realized the importance of eating 1 natural food and so they are recommending that people eat seven pieces of fruit and vegetables a day. They say that this will protect the body from dangerous 2 diseases, especially of the heart, and it may also stop people from getting illnesses such as 3 cancer. Doctors have said that we need to look carefully at our 4 diet if we want to stay healthy. They say that eating too much 5 junk food can make people fat, but it can also make them feel 6 depressed. The wrong food can have a very negative effect on our mental health. People who eat healthily are generally more 7 active than those who do not, because they have more energy to do sport. The idea is that if we take our health and 8 fitness seriously by eating the right food and by doing the right exercise, we will be much happier when we are older and we will live longer.

The very best food

What do you think about ¹ going to Michelin-starred restaurants? It is only the very best restaurants that have a Michelin star, but you can find them all over the world. It is true that they are more expensive than usual and the bill often comes to hundreds of pounds, but foodies love ² at these restaurants. ³ the dishes is often a wonderful experience because the chefs have spent hours ⁴ each one of them. There are usually a lot of chefs in the kitchen, and each one is responsible for one of the dishes on the menu.

⁵ a Michelin star is a great honour for a restaurant, because it means that the head chef is one of the best in the profession. Michelin inspectors visit restaurants without ⁶ anybody that they are coming, so that the chefs cannot make any special preparations. But usually, the chef has an idea that an inspector is in the area because a chef from another restaurant tells him or her. After ⁷ their meal, the inspector pays the bill and leaves, like all the other customers. It is only later that the chef finds out his or her opinion of the restaurant. ⁸ that perhaps they are cooking for a Michelin inspector can make chefs very nervous. They usually prefer ⁹ normal customers, who do not have to make such an important decision about the food.

Space food

Eating in space is much more difficult than it is on Earth because food does not stay in one place. Astronauts can only have 1.7 kilograms of food per person per day, so the size and weight of the container is important. You won't find a ¹jar of jam or a glass ²_____ of water on the International Space Station because glass is too heavy. You won't see a ³_____ of apples either, because fresh fruit doesn't last very long.

In the past, all of the food in space had the same texture as toothpaste, and astronauts had a ⁴_____ of food at each meal. Now things have changed and most of the containers are made of plastic. However, some food is the same as it is at home, and perhaps once a week, it is possible to have a ⁵_____ of tuna or a ⁶_____ of ham for lunch.

Drinking is also more difficult in space. Most drinks come in plastic cups, and astronauts have to add cold or hot water to the cup. You won't find a ⁷_____ of lemonade or a ⁸_____ of juice anywhere in space.

Millions of pizzas ¹ are eaten (eat) every day, but have you ever wondered where the pizza came from? In the 16th century, a kind of flat bread called 'pizza' ² _____ (sell) on the streets of Naples. The bread was very plain and it ³ _____ (not buy) by many people, only the poor. Ingredients ⁴ _____ (not add) to this pizza until the middle of the 19th century, when the pizza became more popular. A few years later, one of the city's pizza makers tried out a new idea on the king's wife, Margherita of Savoy. He made a pizza with mozzarella cheese, tomatoes and herbs on top, and the queen loved it! The man's name was Raffaele Esposito and his experiment became known as the Pizza Margherita. Today, this pizza is typical in Naples, but only if it ⁵ _____ (prepare) by hand. There are a lot of rules telling chefs how to make traditional pizzas and machines ⁶ _____ (not use). Pizza makers have to use a special oven, too.

Pizzas ⁷ _____ (take) to other countries at the end of the 19th century by Italian immigrants looking for work. LATERAL

I took my boyfriend to Lateral for his birthday yesterday, and we weren't disappointed. The 1 location of the restaurant is not ideal as it's in a very narrow street where it's difficult to park. But the place was busy and it had a very lively 2 _____, so we didn't mind. The 3 _____ was excellent and the waiters and waitresses were all very helpful. But the best thing about the restaurant was the 4 _____. My prawns were delicious, and the vegetables were cooked perfectly. My boyfriend's fish was delicious too. I had a nice surprise when I asked for the bill as the price was very reasonable. We both thought the meal was fantastic 5 _____. We've already told all our friends about Lateral because we had such a good time.

- 2 Read an extract from a factfile.

- 3 Complete the summary.

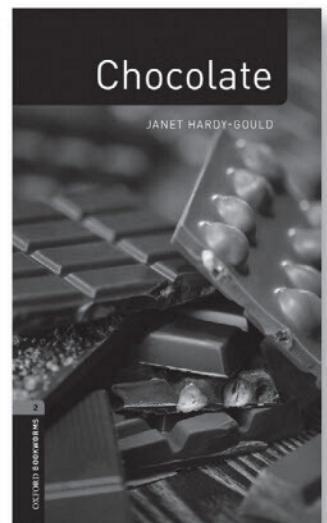

Cacao ¹ pods begin to grow when a tree is about ² _____ years old. When the pods change ³ _____, people take them down and cut them open. First they put the cacao beans in large ⁴ _____ covered with ⁵ _____ leaves for up to a week. Then they dry the beans on large ⁶ _____ in the sun for two or three weeks. After that, the farmers sell the beans to ⁷ _____, who sell them on to ⁸ _____ to be made into chocolate bars.

- 4 Think about the process of making chocolate. Did you know before how chocolate was made?
Do you like chocolate? Why/Why not? If so, which type of chocolate is your favourite?

From cacao pod to chocolate bar

The cacao tree begins to have its first pods after about three years. It is very different from most other trees because its flowers and then its pods grow from the centre of the tree.

The large cacao pods are wonderful to see. At first, they are a beautiful light green. But after six months, when they are ready to open, they become very colourful. They can be bright red or orange, dark purple or deep green.

The people on the plantation take down the pods with very long sticks. Then they cut them open with big knives. Inside they find between 20 and 40 cacao beans in the soft white pulp. The beans are very hard and they do not smell or taste like chocolate.

The workers then usually put the beans and the pulp in large boxes with some banana leaves on the top. They leave these in the hot sun for four to seven days and some of the chemicals in the beans begin to change.

The beans are now very different. They are no longer white or purple – they are dark brown. And very importantly, they smell of wonderful chocolate!

Next, the plantation workers put the beans onto large tables. They dry the beans in the sun for ten to twenty days and move them from time to time. On larger plantations they dry them in special buildings. But the best chocolate comes from beans which stay in the sun for a long time.

The farmers then put the beans into bags of about 64 kilograms each and sell them to brokers – business people who buy and sell cacao beans for money. The brokers then sell them to the chocolate factories. But the chocolate factories do not just buy one type of bean. Beans from different countries, or even from different factories, taste different. In the factories, people mix together different types of bean to get chocolate with just the right taste.

More than words

Things often go wrong at job interviews and it is quite normal 1 to have a problem. The important thing is your reaction, which can sometimes get you the job. This is exactly what happened to an American woman who was invited 2 to an interview at a company that was looking for a new receptionist. The woman parked outside the building, got out of her car and closed the door quickly ... on her thumb! She needed the car keys 3 open the door, but they were in her bag. Eventually, she managed 4 to the keys and open the car door, but her thumb was hurting a lot. She decided 5 to the interview anyway. She greeted the interviewer, and everything was going well until he asked her 6 to a typing test. She explained that she couldn't do the test because of her accident and she offered 7 to the next day. The interviewer got some ice for her thumb, and asked her a few more questions before she left. The next day she had a call from the company saying that they wanted 8 her the job. She had been so calm after her accident that they thought she would make an excellent receptionist.

Conversation 1

- A We had a bad experience when we were on holiday a few years ago. We hired a car and went exploring on the coast.

A In the Canary Islands – in Fuerteventura, to be exact. So, anyway, we were in this hired car and we decided to leave the main road. We were driving in some sand when, suddenly, the car got stuck.

B Oh no!

A That's what I thought. I was so angry with my husband – he went right when I said left, and suddenly, we were lost and stuck.

B So, what did you do?

A We walked about five kilometres to the nearest road, and then we got a taxi back to our hotel, where we called for help. It was all OK in the end, but it cost us €250 to get the car out of the sand!

Conversation 2

A A funny thing happened last weekend when we went for a walk. We parked our car in a pretty little village and walked over the mountains to the next village. We were hoping to get a bus back to our car.

B So, what happened?

A We asked in a café about the buses, but there weren't any.

B You're joking!

A No, it's true. The café was full, so we left and started looking for a place to have lunch. We were walking along the road when a woman stopped her car and told us to get in.

B Why did she do that?

A She heard us ask about the buses in the café, so she knew where we wanted to go. You see, she was working in the village where our car was, and so she took us there on the way to work. We were so pleased!

P = Presenter, A = Amy

P It takes a long time to build a house, and the end result is usually very expensive, as you know if you're trying to buy one. But a Chinese company has found a fantastic new way to make houses that are cheap AND take less time to build. Amy Chang is here to tell us all about them. Amy, how are the houses made?

A Well, believe it or not, they are made by a 3D computer printer.

P A computer printer! You're joking!

A No, I'm not. It's true. But this computer printer is no ordinary printer. It's absolutely huge. The printer is 150 metres long and ten metres wide. It doesn't print the finished house, but it prints the different parts of it. Then, workers have to put the parts together to make the house.

P But what is the house made of? It obviously isn't paper!

A No, no. The house is made of concrete. But the interesting thing is that the company is using recycled waste to make the concrete. The waste comes from building and industry and the company needs a lot of it to make the houses. That's why they're going to build a hundred new factories in China to recycle the waste.

P So the houses are green as well as cheap and easy to build. Amy, what does a printed house look like?

A Well, these houses are much smaller than normal ones and they only have one floor. But you can have a window if you want, and you can divide the house into two rooms. It depends on the design, really.

P And what about the price? How much does one of these printed houses cost?

A Each one costs around 3,650 euros. But you have to go to China to buy one. Actually, the houses aren't really for people like you and me. They are really for people without a home. Perhaps they are too poor to buy a house or maybe they have lost their home in a natural disaster. The company that makes them, the WinSun Decoration Design Engineering Company, has spent years working on the houses – and the printer.

P Well, I think it's a great idea! Amy Chang, thank you for joining us.

A OK. When you get off the bus, walk up the hill and take the second right.

R Amara, this is a really bad connection.

A Up the hill and second right. Did you get that?

R Sorry, I'm a bit lost ...

A Raz. Raz? He's gone.

Speaker 1

This happened on a car journey we did one spring – to the village where my mother-in-law lives. We decided to drive over the mountains, but it started to snow, and soon there was ice and snow everywhere. We had to drive very slowly and there were a lot of cars at the side of the road. Fortunately, my husband is a very good driver, so we got there in the end.

Speaker 2

I had a very bad experience one night when I was riding home on my bike. I had my lights on and everything, but that didn't seem to make any difference. I came to a roundabout where I wanted to go straight on, but suddenly this lorry appeared. It crossed over right in front of me – it was so close that it touched my foot. I don't know how I didn't fall off my bike!

Speaker 3

I was in a hotel once and I couldn't sleep. I got up to look out of the window, and I saw some big black clouds in the sky. Only they weren't clouds, and I suddenly realized that there was a fire – in my hotel! I didn't know what to do. Luckily, the emergency services were already there, and somebody came to take me outside. What a nightmare!

Speaker 4

I've never been very keen on flying, but my last trip was worse than ever. The weather was awful, and it was really cloudy, so the pilot was having problems landing. The plane was moving all over the place, and everybody was holding on to their seats. We tried to land three times before we actually stopped going up in the air again. It was very frightening, I can tell you.

Speaker 5

I had a really frightening experience on a train once. A man got on the train and sat down opposite me. We got talking, and to start with, he seemed really nice. Then he told me to give him my mobile phone. Of course, I said no, but then he started shouting at me and I was really frightened because there weren't many people around. I gave him my phone in the end, and he got off at the next station with it.

Speaker 6

My most frightening experience was when I nearly drowned. I was swimming in the sea off the coast of Mauritius about four years ago and suddenly I couldn't stand in the water and the sea was moving me away from my friends and I couldn't get back to them. One friend saw what was happening and said, 'Don't panic! Just wait until the current brings you back!' And luckily it did. But I never went in the sea again on that holiday!

Speaker 7

I was very frightened about six weeks ago when my six-year-old son had problems while he was eating dinner. He had been eating steak and put a large piece into his mouth and then tried to eat it but it was stuck and he couldn't breathe! His face became red and he didn't know what to do and neither did I. Fortunately my sister was in the house and she hit him on the back, then the piece of meat came out. But we were all very frightened and we cried a lot.

9.3

- A Morning. How can I help you?
- B Hello. Have you got anything for a cold?
- A Well, there isn't much I can do really. I think you should go home and get lots of rest.
- B Can you give me something for my cough? It's very annoying.
- A Yes, you could try this medicine. Take it every six hours until the cough goes away.
- B Right.
- A It's a good idea to drink lots of water, too. And keep warm. You mustn't go out.
- B OK. Thank you very much.

10.3Conversation 1

- A Excuse me? I'm afraid I can't eat this steak. It's raw.
- B Really? I'll take it back to the kitchen for you.
- A No, I'd like to order something else, please.
- B Of course. What would you like?
- A I'm not sure. Would you mind bringing me the menu again?
- B Of course not. I'm terribly sorry about your steak.
- A Don't worry about it. Erm, I'll have a salad, please.

Conversation 2

- A Excuse me? Could you possibly bring me the bill?
- B Yes, of course ... Here it is.
- A Oh. There seems to be a mistake.
- B Is there?
- A Yes. You've charged me for the steak, but I didn't eat it.
- B You're absolutely right. I do apologize.
- A Don't worry. It's not your fault.

11.4))

- A Beth, what do you think about all the security cameras on the streets today?
- B Oh, I think we need them.
- A Why's that?
- B In my view, they help the police to catch criminals.
- A I'm sorry, but I don't really agree. It's very easy to break the cameras.
- B True, but what about the criminals who don't know that there's a camera?
- A I take your point, but the cameras make me feel like a criminal.
- B That's right. It isn't very nice knowing that someone is watching you all the time.
- A Exactly. Personally, I don't like it at all.
- B Maybe. Perhaps there shouldn't be so many of them.

- B Well, I've got a university degree in Sports Management.
- A Oh good, and how much experience have you got?
- B I've worked as a sports centre manager for three years and I'm currently working for Pinto Sports near Madrid.
- A Right. So why do you want to work for this company?
- B I'm enjoying my job right now, but I'd really like to get into community sports.
- A Sure. And what are your strengths and weaknesses?
- B Strengths? Well, I'm good at dealing with the public, and I can work well in a team. As for weaknesses, I find it hard to switch off at the end of the day. But I'm working on that.

12.4))

Presenter: There is an island in the South Pacific, about 3,600 km from the coast of Chile, called Easter Island. It isn't huge, and it doesn't have any tall trees, but it has a lot of massive stone statues on it called moai. Most of the moai are over nine metres tall, and there are 887 of them in total. They were created between the years 1250 and 1500 by the people who lived there: the Rapa Nui.

The Rapa Nui arrived at Easter Island from across the sea in large wooden boats. At the time, the island was covered with very tall trees, and it was the perfect place to live. They used the wood from the trees to build houses and new boats to go fishing. There was more than enough food for everybody and the population grew. Soon, some people went to live in different parts of the island. Then, the Rapa Nui started to make statues. Nobody is sure of the reason for these statues, but some people say that one was made each time an important leader died. The statues were all made in the same place, and then they were transported across the island. Trees were cut down to transport the statues, and as more statues were made, more trees were cut down. In the end, the Rapa Nui cut down all of the trees on the island. This was a disaster. Now, there were no trees to protect the land, so they could not grow any plants, and they had no wood to make boats to go fishing. Soon, there was not enough food for everybody. People started fighting, and the Rapa Nui began to die of hunger. The population fell from 15,000 to around 750. It was the beginning of the end of the Rapa Nui.

Today, the only thing that remains of the Rapa Nui on Easter Island is the moai. But their story can teach us a valuable lesson. On such a small island, it was easy to see what was happening as the trees disappeared. But the people carried on cutting them down. The rest of us can learn from the Rapa Nui. We have already seen the natural disasters that happen when we don't look after the planet. But there is still time to save it. If we start taking more interest in the environment, the same thing that happened to the Rapa Nui may not happen to us.

C Excuse me? I'm afraid I can't eat this steak. It's raw.

W Really? I'll take it back to the kitchen for you.

C No, I'd like to order something else, please.

W Of course. What would you like?

C I'm not sure. Would you mind bringing me the menu again?

W Of course not. I'm terribly sorry about your steak.

C Don't worry about it. Erm, I'll have a salad, please.

Conversation 2

C Excuse me? Could you possibly bring me the bill?

W Yes of course ... Here it is.

C Oh. There seems to be a mistake.

W Is there?

C Yes. You've charged me for the steak, but I didn't eat it.

W You're absolutely right. I do apologize.

C Don't worry. It's not your fault.
